...of two, impaled on bayonets, were carried proudly at the head of Ethiopian troops. The other two were kept in prison, that the emperor, Haile Selassie, might have the satisfaction of seeing them upon his arrival. They were horribly beaten, while chained.

After Italy has seen the photographs of these tortured and mutilated men, it would be wise for Haile Selassie to keep out of the Italian government's hand, for a while, if possible. Mussolini might do to him what the English thought they would do to the former kaiser, until they remembered that he was a cousin of their own king, and a hanging would not look well in the royal family records.

Enslaving Chancellor Hitler. Air Minister Goering concludes his address: "Hell, victory to the Fuehrer, and the supreme war lord."

"Supreme war lord" is a fine title, but it usually comes after supreme conquest.

Goering who bestows the resonant title on Chancellor Hitler would be advised by such old men as Bismarck or Von Moltke to wait at least until after the first battle.

Many heavy cannon, airplanes and bombs belonging to foreigners stand between Chancellor Hitler and that "supreme war lord" title.

Similar things affect different men in different ways. In Honolulu, James Dodd, 29, told "you are fired," went to the airport, flew up 2000 feet in his new monoplane, pointed it downward, killed himself in a power dive.

Paul Armstrong, wonderfully good sporting writer, told by his editor, "you are fired," replied "much obliged, now I shall carry out my plan to write a play and get it on Broadway."

Within a year he had written "Alas Jimmy Valentine" and enjoyed its great success. Temporary failure is good for the right kind of a man; fatal to others.

British Mother Ordered Hanged

LONDON, April 23.—(P)—A poverty-stricken mother, Mrs. Gladys Amelia Varley, 26, of Dover, was convicted and sentenced to death today on a charge of strangling her five-month-old twins.

Mrs. Varley claimed the children starved to death.

The police, who said they found the bodies with cords around the necks, quoted the mother as saying the landlady provided food for another child "but the other two—well, they died."

The jury recommended mercy for Mrs. Varley, who was separated from her husband.

with an attack on the stadium plans. He said:

"I went to Washington and made a personal appearance before the federal commission there and I made them a talk in which I opposed the stadium idea. I consider the stadium inappropriate. I don't believe that's the way to commemorate the deeds and heroisms of Texas' heroes."

Thomas did take time out, however, to deny he had announced he would favor Travis Park as a cenotaph site. He said he had merely inquired about its possibilities.

E. J. Altgelt, member of the local majority faction and assistant to Thomas, had reported earlier in the week that Thomas probably would favor Travis Park.

Altgelt said he, too, had thought of the site but that, someone would have to gain permission from the Daughters of the Confederacy to move their monument to a corner of the park. Altgelt suggested three of the Texas hero monuments could be placed in the other corners.

AGAINST MOVING

Such suggestions raised immediate storm of protest from the Confederate organizations, however, and Altgelt, Thursday, announced to Thomas:

"I want to say before the commissioner-general that I am not in favor of moving that beautiful Confederate monument in Travis Park. I have no opinion on it whatsoever."

The Alamo grounds, Thomas said, are the third site already recommended for the cenotaph.

The commissioner-general, who came here Thursday morning from his home in Dallas, said he would spend two days in San Antonio, making an informal study of the proposed sites for the statuary. Later he will make his recommendations.

Thomas said he would confer, informally, with the individual members of the local advisory group and with any other interested citizens.

ner in the firm of H. Ley and company, had received the ransom note by messenger just before his son telephoned from the farm. Mr. and Mrs. Koch drove to the scene, picked up a park guard at the Little Lehigh parkway and soon were joined by city police.

Within a few minutes they sighted a man walking toward the spot where the boy was left. He broke into a run when he saw them, but halted as policemen drew pistols and one shouted: "Let him have it." No shots were fired and the man surrendered.

None of the ransom notes fixed a place for the kidnaper to receive the money. They directed the father where to drive for "further instructions." All the sites were to the vicinity of the woods where the boy was left.

Bathtub Killer May Plead Insane

NEW YORK, April 23.—(P)—Henry Klauber, defense counsel for John Fiorenza, 24-year-old confessed slayer of Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton, labored today on plans to save him from conviction of first degree murder and the electric chair. Indicating he would endeavor to prove Fiorenza was insane.

District Attorney William C. Dodge, planning to take the case to the grand jury either today or tomorrow, said, however:

"I am satisfied Fiorenza is perfectly normal. I have a perfect airtight case if there ever was one."

Museum Gets Wedding Dress Worn in 1887

Other Gifts Include Photo Of Confederate Monument

Travis park may belong to the city, but its heart belongs to the U. D. C.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy own the monument in the center of the square, according to Miss Elizabeth Houston, who has sent the Witte Memorial museum a picture of it taken at the time of the dedication.

Her pictures also include two shots of the Belknap rifles ready for action, along about 1898.

Women certainly were built on a small scale in the "olden" days.

If you don't think so, just TRY to get into the museum's newest acquisition, a wedding dress worn by Adrienne Anthony, who married Benjamin Seaman Van Tuyl, at Fall River, Mass., in 1887.

The dress, which was made in New York by Madame Glover, is of ivory, satin trimmed with bobbin lace and bodice separate from the skirt. It was worn only the one time, and never made over. Hand-knitted stockings and a full wedding veil go with it. The dress was the gift of Anthony Van Tuyl, 401 Shock avenue, whose mother was the dainty little bride.

Since the exhibits during summer never vary, Miss Eleanor Orendorff, the art curator, is just coasting along. She is catching up on all the repair work, and has just finished refinishing and saving for posterity an old picture of the cathedral in Mexico City.

And while we are on the subject of art, the life classes of Cecilia Schindler have been changed from 7 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Many soldiers have artistic talents; the museum has discovered.

The first exhibition of the fall has been booked. It is the water color collection of Douglas Parshall of California, a portrait painter of note.

Miss Nelson of San Antonio is the granddaughter of the late Elizabeth Bowen Nelson, a member of a pioneer Texas family.

She was graduated from Brackenridge High school, where she was a cadet sponsor.

Lieutenant Skinner's home is in Indianapolis, Ind. He attended Purdue university before entering the United States air corps.

Church Will Honor Pastor

The Westminster Presbyterian church, South St. Mary's and Temple streets, is honoring the Rev. Thomas J. Bradley, retiring pastor, with a farewell party on the church lawn Monday at 8 p. m.

The Rev. Mr. Bradley has served Westminster during the past nine months and is leaving July 1 to accept work in other fields.

The Optimissus club will meet Wednesday at noon in the south terrace dining room of the Gunter hotel. Mesdames Gladys Zeller and Leslie Greenwood will be hostesses.

TO WEDD SOON

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Trautdt, of San Saba, announce the engagement of their daughter, Hope Elizabeth Nelson, to Oramel Horace Skinner Jr., lieutenant, U. S. air forces. The wedding will take place July 3 in the Randolph field chapel.

Recall Group Says City Doesn't Own Travis Park

Travis Park's controversial underground parking garage was attacked from a new angle Wednesday when an attorney charged the city would forfeit its right to the downtown square if its use as a public park is disturbed.

Charles M. Dickson, attorney for the Voters Recall Movement fighting the parking garage, in a letter to City Mgr. Ralph H. Winton, challenged the city's title to the park.

He maintained that the city merely enjoys use of the park's surface through the "legal doctrine of dedication."

"The city can legally continue to use this land as a public park as long as (it) desires," wrote Dickson, "but if the use of this land as ~~public~~ park is abandoned, the right of possession will revert to the heirs of Mrs. Mary A. Maverick, deceased."

"Under no theory can it be actually said that the city has ever acquired the right to use the sub-surface of Travis Park for commercial purposes."

Record legal title to Travis Park is vested in the heirs of Mrs. Maverick, Dickson said his research of property records has disclosed.

He also claimed that the Confederate monument in the center of the park does not belong to the city but is the property of the Bernard E. Bee chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

"I assume you are familiar with the provisions of the penal code of Texas which make it a criminal offense for anyone to attempt to injure or destroy any property of any kind without the consent of the owner," Dickson wrote.

Dickson's letter kindled rumors that opponents of the parking garage project agreed on by city council last year are preparing to file suit in the name of the Maverick heirs to restrain the city from going through with a lease contract with H. B. Zachry for construction and operation of the subterranean facility.

struction and operation of the subterranean facility.

Miss Mary V. Green, chairman of the Voters Recall Movement, denied knowledge of such pending legal action, however.

"We are going to wait and see how the recall works first," she said.

The Voters Recall Movement is aimed at unseating Mayor Jack White, Councilmen Ralph Easley, R. L. Lester, H. J. Shearer, R. N. White, Jr., and Councilwoman Theima Stevens. These council members voted against submission of the parking project to a referendum vote of the people.

City Atty. Jack Davis shrugged off the Dickson contentions.

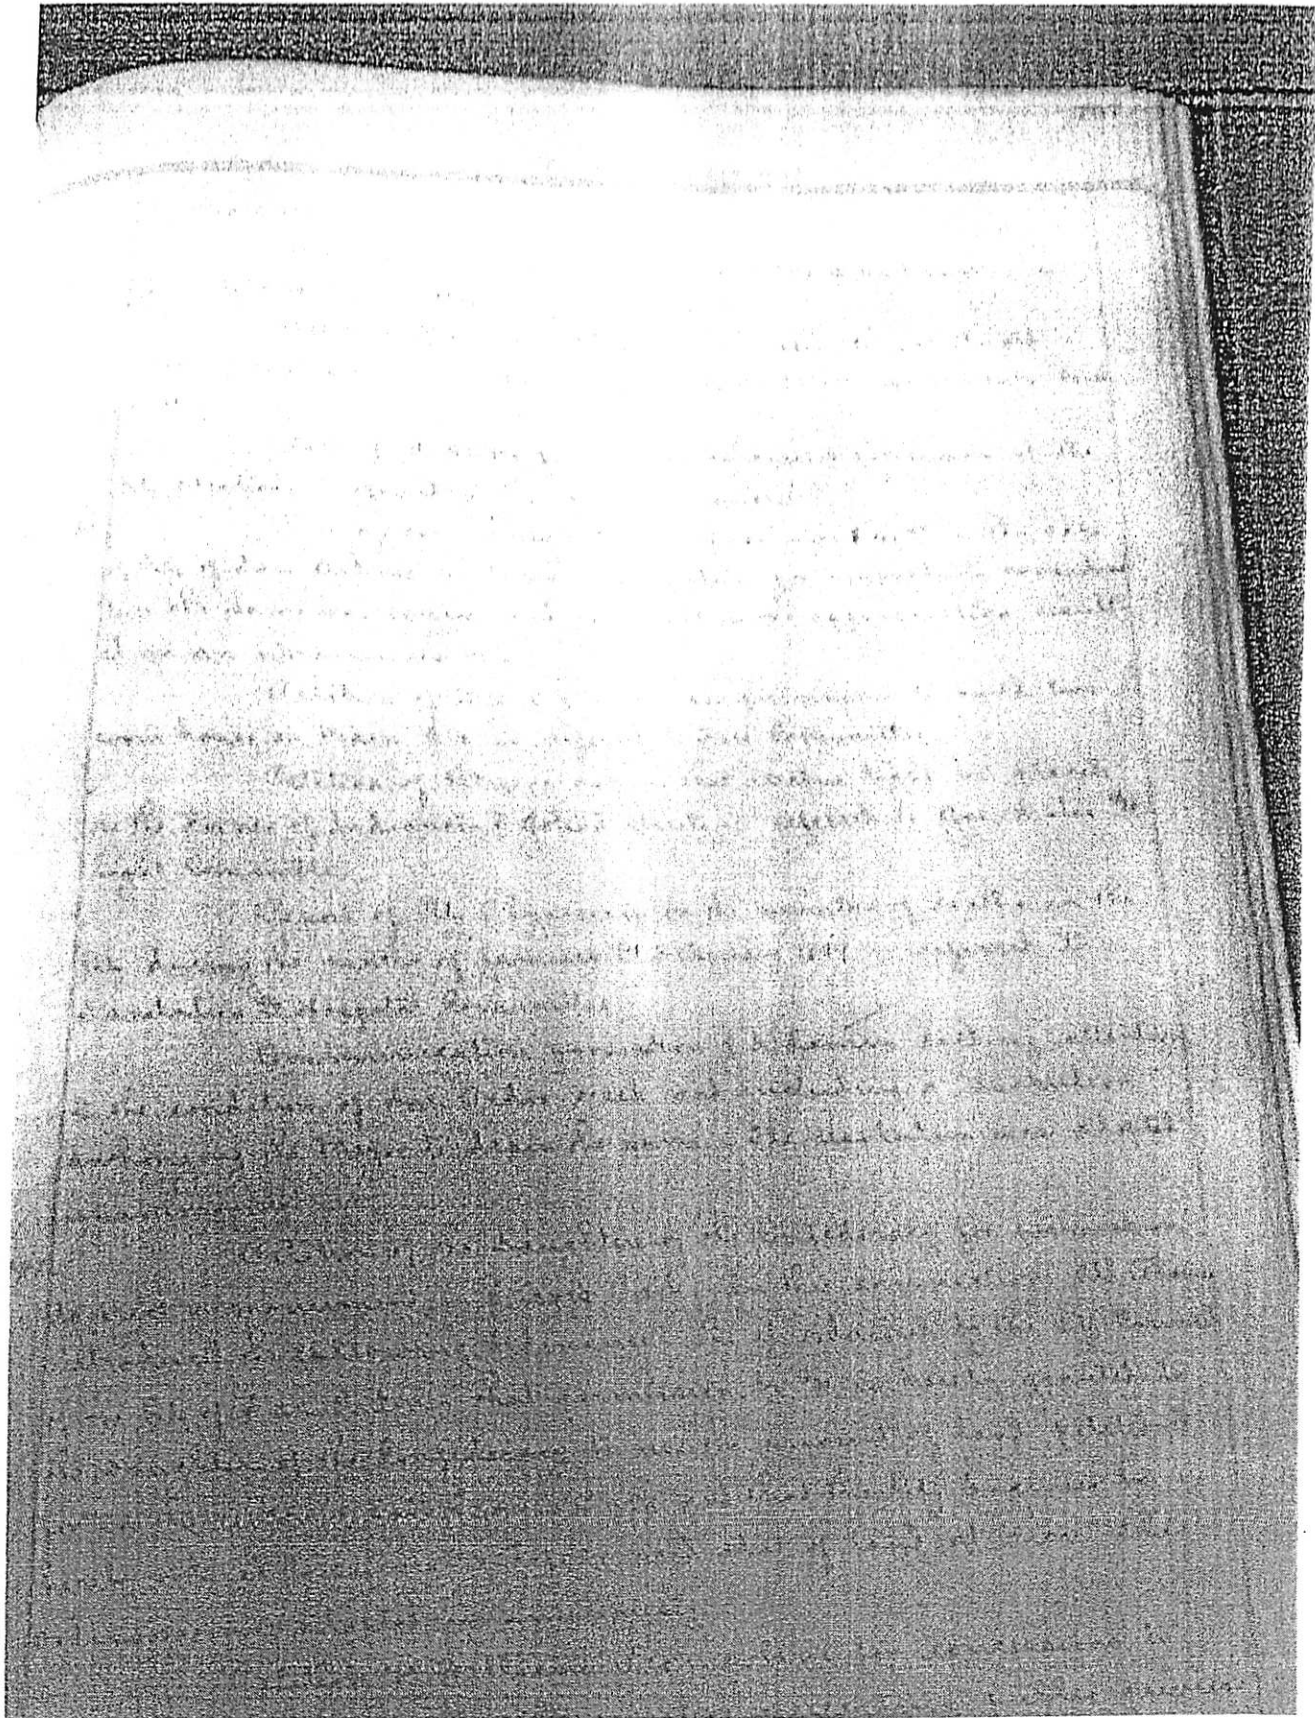

"I know all about the status of the deed to that park," said Davis. "I searched for the deed from the Mavericks myself before all this business came up. I couldn't find it. We do have an abstract certified to by the Alamo Abstract Company in 1921."

Mrs. Gracia de Sahariego brought suit for title to the square years ago and the case went all the way to the Supreme Court.

"The court ruled the title then belonged to Samuel and Mary Maverick and their heirs. The city tenoted Travis Square in 1874, and since that date it has had undisputed control of the park."

"We assume it was passed to the city by Maverick. If it wasn't, the statute of limitations has run out on any heirs trying to recover possession. The city undoubtedly has title now."
